CITY DIGS ITSELF OUT.

Surprise Snow Storm Makes Bother -Trolley Car Leaves Iron, But Is Soon Returned.

The snow storm of Wednesday, which looked as if it might be over that night, refused to leave without proving the old saying, "if you want a blizzard, arrange for a military ball," and by Thursday morning there was more snow in this city than has been seen this winter.

Men in the employ of the street department were busy early Thursday morning with horse plows and shovels making paths on the sidewalks and streets, and when the snow stopped about noon, everyone who could got after the walks in front of his property, with the result that traveling was not bad in the city by night time. All the trains coming to Wifflmantic were more or less late, varying from a few minutes to an hour or

On account of the accumulation of snow, the trolley due here from Norwich left the rails at the curve at during the last ice storm, but no damage was done and a wrecking crew from Greeneville had the track cleared by one o'clock.

The thirty-two boxes were marked off by strips of red and white bunting and the entrance posts were wound in white topped with sprays of laurel.
